

ENGR 0011 – Fall 2018
HW 7

Acceptable behaviors for this assignment include:

- Consulting your textbook or other written material
- Asking your team members
- Asking your professor or TA

Note that consulting materials and asking others is only acceptable as long as they do not provide you with the solutions – you have to come to the solution on your own!

Unacceptable behaviors for this assignment include:

- Copying the solution(s) from a solution manual, book, other written material, or from other students
- Copying the solutions(s) from assignments submitted in previous semesters
- Providing the solutions to a classmate, student in other section, student in future section, or online solution banks
- Asking someone to complete the assignment for you

For this assignment you will begin the design of your personal web page, using Figure 3.3-1 in your textbook as a guide.

Follow these instructions:

- As in the figure, add a title to the head of your web page that will define your web page. Begin with an H1 heading that will introduce who you are. After this, include the following statement in bold and centered: “This web page is being written as a requirement for my ENGR0011 class but the content in the page is mine and what is posted is my choice and is not the position of the University and does not reflect on the University policies.”
- Include a Bio section with a few paragraphs describing who you are. You are welcome to use material from your Writing Assignments, if you like. The text should be at least 300 words long. Make the color of the text something other than black.
- Follow this with a <H2> heading titled "Things I like to do". Center the heading and make the color of the heading something other than black. Write a paragraph describing at least three things that interest you.

Include a comment with your name and team number at the top.

Include comment lines that separate the text and explain what material is going to be presented. Include proper indenting between the start and end tags.

You must write the code using pico/nano or Wordpad/Notepad. You cannot use any web design software.

This is an individual assignment. Submit a .txt file with your code. Name your text file HW7username.txt (HW7abc123.txt) and upload it through your class computer using the official file submission link (found on the desktop of class computers in GSCC 138 or BEH 229 at the beginning of the class when this assignment is due). You should also save another copy of this code as intro.html or welcome.html, and save it in your html directory in your public directory.